

COMMERCIAL CLUB WAS REORGANIZED

Enthusiastic Meeting at the City Building Friday Night by Business Men and Citizens.

EVERY MAN BECAME A MEMBER

Officers Elected and Plans Started For Increasing Membership to 200 by June 1, 1912.

Sixty-two men enrolled as members of the reorganized Seymour Commercial Club at the City Building Friday evening.

At the close of the meeting of the Seymour Improvement Co. when dividends were paid to the stockholders who were present, the City Hall was comfortably filled with men who were interested in the welfare of Seymour and who had come for the purpose of considering the reorganization of the Commercial Club. T. S. Blish acted as chairman of the meeting and Clark B. Davis as secretary.

The articles of incorporation and the by-laws of the Seymour Commercial Club were read. This organization was incorporated in 1901 for a period of fifty years and while it has been inactive for a number of years the reorganization Friday evening was full of enthusiasm and life and promises well for the future business interests of our city. After a number of addresses by persons who were interested and who had been taking the lead in the movement during the last few weeks, it was decided to enroll as members all who were willing to take up the organization again and become active in its support for the development of the business interests of Seymour. Every man who was present signed his name as a member of the reorganization.

The following officers were elected: President, H. C. Johnson. Vice-President, Nathan Kaufman. Treasurer, J. H. Andrews. C. B. Davis was appointed temporary secretary to serve until the board of directors shall select the permanent secretary. Under the articles of incorporation the secretary is to be selected by the board of directors who were elected by the stockholders.

A committee of three, consisting of S. A. Barnes, W. L. Johnson and Jay C. Smith, was appointed to nominate a list of candidates for directors and report them at the next meeting of the stockholders next Friday night.

A membership soliciting committee was appointed, consisting of the newly elected officers, H. C. Johnson, N. Kaufman, J. H. Andrews, Clark B. Davis and Fred Able. The purpose is to make the membership 100 by next Friday night and 200 by June 1.

A letter was read by Mr. Kaufman from a factory having a payroll of about $1,000 a week who are looking for a location. He has written them again and this matter can be taken up when further word is received, and when the corporation is fully organized and ready to consider propositions.

The enthusiasm which was manifest and the general spirit of determination to move things forward in Seymour speaks well for the future of the Commercial Club. Seymour has many advantages over surrounding cities and there are frequent opportunities not only for letting these advantages be known but for giving desirable business interests the opportunity to consider our advantages. There are many things in the way of civic improvement which can come up for consideration; in fact there are numerous lines in which a Commercial Club can be of great advantage to our city. Every person who has been spoken to this morning is enthusiastic over the new organization and over the loyalty which was manifested last night when every man present became a member of the organization. There is no reason why under the competent leadership which a good board of directors and the newly elected officers can give it that Seymour may not move forward more rapidly than ever before.

Farmers' Moving Day.

Many renters of Jackson county, as well as every other county, are moving, for the first of March is the time to see the farm wagons loaded with household goods and farm machinery going along the country roads. It is the season for the beginning of the work of the new year's crop, the sowing and the planting, and to get an early start those who expect to make a change in location move early, often the last of February, as it takes a few days to get the wheels to moving where all is strange. The first week, if not the first day, of March finds the enterprising farmer anxious about his farming interests.

Those who own their farms, of course, are seldom in the class of movers, but the tendency of land owners to move to the cities and nearby towns has seized the people in recent years, and to rent their farms to tenants who are willing to farm on a rental basis, has caused a condition of dissatisfaction among some farmers. Many tenants seek to improve their financial status by going onto someone's else farm where the lease will give them more license. In turn the owners are looking for a tenant who will give more care to the farm and its operations.

The importance of the lease between owner and tenant grows year by year, especially so if the farm is rented on shares. In this case it is designated in the lease what ground shall be used for corn, what for oats, what for pasture, and so through all the various crops. Specifications are often made also to the disposition of the fruit, while the implements and stock are dealt with in the lease.

DIED

HALL.—The funeral of Mrs. Nancy Hall who died Wednesday evening at her home two and one half miles west of Vallonia, will be held Sunday morning at 10:30 from the residence, conducted by Elder G. M. Shotts.

Mrs. Hall was in her eighty-second year and was one of the oldest women in Jackson county. She was born and spent all of her life at the home place where she died. Six grown children survive. Miss Jessie Hall of this city is a grand-daughter.

A Local Flood Recalled.

John L. Owens recalls that just thirty-two years ago today the big flood of that year reached its height and the waters from the river reached to hangman's crossing west of the city, a thing which has not occurred since. At the same time the waters from the big ditch to the west of the city reached the Peters farm west of the city on the Cortland road.

IMPROVEMENT CO. PAYS DIVIDEND

Stockholders Held Meeting at City Building Friday Evening to Divide the Pie.

FIVE PER CENT. NET PER YEAR

Makes the Stock a Profitable Investment—Board of Directors Re-elected for the Coming Year.

The stockholders of the Seymour Improvement Co. met at the City Building Friday evening, receiving a five per cent. dividend on their stock. This company was organized about a year ago to purchase the Hotel Jonas for leasing to the B. & O. S-W. Railroad for office building. The stock was purchased very generally by the business men and other citizens who had a small amount of money to invest for the good of Seymour. The building was leased to the Railroad Company on satisfactory terms. It has been remodelled by the company to suit its needs for office purposes, and a heating plant costing about $4,000, has been installed. When the officials of the road were here last Tuesday, the visiting officers stated that there were no more convenient or better equipped offices on the road than those which are in Seymour.

The payment of five per cent. dividend makes a very profitable investment as the taxes are already paid, making the dividend a net amount to the stockholders. The effectiveness of this organization and the practical demonstration of what can be done by united effort aided materially in the organization of the Seymour Commercial Club, which followed immediately after the Improvement Company adjourned. The stockholders of the Improvement Company elected the same board of directors to serve the coming year: Dr. J. M. Shields, T. S. Blish, H. C. Johnson, C. D. Billings, J. H. Andrews, John W. Conner, J. H. Matlock.

NEW CLUSTER LIGHT

The Hub Clothing Store Joins The New Street Light Movement.

A new cluster light has been placed in front of the Hub Clothing Store. It consists of a cluster of five lights on an upright standard which is both neat and ornamental in its design. This is the same style light as was placed in front of the First National Bank recently. A number of other merchants are considering the advisability of putting in such a light in front of their place of business. If the movement becomes general it will add very materially to the beauty of our streets at night, especially if there should be uniformity in the distribution of lights so that the beauty of the streets may be enhanced.

Seymour is especially fortunate in having wide business streets, much wider than the ordinary city. The streets are well paved and kept clean and the addition of the new lights will add greatly to the appearance of the business districts at night.

WAS TAKEN TO STATE PRISON

The Cincinnati Negro Who Robbed Kessler Store Given a Long Term.

HIS PRETENSION OF INSANITY

Continued Through The Trial Did Not Save Him From Penitentiary.

George Austin, the Cincinnati negro who with a companion stole thirteen guns from the Kessler hardware store some time ago, was arraigned in the circuit court Friday, was convicted and was sentenced to the state prison at Michigan City for a term of from ten to twenty years. The charge against him was burglary. Austin was taken to the penitentiary today by Sheriff McOsker.

While he had been awaiting trial in the jail at Brownstown Austin had been playing crazy or at least it had been believed that he was merely feigning insanity. He continued the game in court Friday but it did not work and he was given the dose he was entitled to. Having no money the county attorney was assigned to defend him. Austin would not talk, mumbling and pretending not to understand the proceedings.

However when his attorney finally instructed him to hand to the judge two slips of paper which he had in his possession, he promptly obeyed. On one slip was the statement that Austin had been confined in the insane asylum at Anamosa, Iowa for five years from 1905 to 1910. The second slip said he had escaped from an asylum at Oshkosh, Wis., last November and to the statement was signed the name of some man as superintendent of the asylum. Both statements were scribbled on ordinary scratch paper and it is supposed were written by jail prisoners.

After Austin's fate had been determined and he had been returned to jail he seemed to improve rapidly and when officers and others visited him at the jail he was able to do a very fair and intelligent job of talking.

When arrested some time ago Austin gave no evidences of insanity. The Cincinnati police have a bad record charged up to him. At one time in that city he was arrested for stealing a gallon bucket of change from vending machines and it was alleged that when being arrested he shot a button off the coat of one officer. He had numerous aliases in Cincinnati and when first arrested for the Seymour robbery gave the name of Al Jackson.

If he really is off mentally, which is considered wholly improbable, he can be given all attention necessary at the prison. He certainly deserved punishment as he was sane enough when he committed the robbery. When taken through here this morning Austin was handcuffed and the sheriff and a deputy had good grips on him.

PICTURE AND SKETCH

Of Seymour Citizen Appeared In Louisville Magazine.

The last issue of "The Kernel" a magazine published at Louisville and devoted to milling and kindred interests, contained an excellent picture of J. J. Rottman of Seymour and the following interesting sketch:

Mr. J. J. Rottman, of Seymour, Ind., superintendent Blish Milling Co., 1,200 bbls., director F. O. M. A., student, gentleman. He has been learning things for 40 years, during 30 years of which he has specialized on milling. The best evidence that he is more than ordinarily well informed is the fact that he acknowledges he does not know it all, although he has studied the science and art of milling in all of its phases—from a 25-barrel mill to a 1,200-barrel mill, from buhrs to rolls and disintegrating machines, from visits to many of the biggest mills in the county, from association with all kinds of millers at conventions, from boyhood to mature manhood.

Everybody knows Mr. Rottman's history, how he started as a ten-year-old boy in his father's mill, helping on Saturdays in the platform work, later packing and sweeping, then dressing stones, and finally having entire charge of the mill at Eugene, Ind. From this through various changes to second miller for the 500-barrel mill of W. L. Kidder & Sons at Terre Haute, Ind., where he operated under the famous John Koelner. In 1886 he first took charge of the Blish mills, then only a 150-barrel mill. No better monument to his efficiency can be erected than the handsome 1,200-barrel plant to which it has grown under his constant operation.

Many people like Mr. Rottman for many different reasons,—his wife and children because he is a good husband and father, his employers because he has contributed to their success, the men under him because he is just, his brother millers in other plants because of his liberality in imparting knowledge he has acquired from thoughtful experience. But everybody likes Joe Rottman because he is wholesome, honest, level headed, and sympathetic. He never takes snap judgment. He forms no violent prejudices. He is always open to conviction. Because of these qualities every convention of the F. O. M. A. adds a new host of friends, and all of his friends are unanimous in declaring him A MAN.

A CHICAGO MAN HAS EYE ON LINE

Reported That Samuel Insul Wants Indianapolis, Columbus & Southern Road.

STATEMENT BY OFFICIALS

Of Company That They Have No Knowledge of Any Pending Negotiations.

A new Albany dispatch Friday stated that Samuel Insul of Chicago, a traction magnate who owns lines in Chicago and lines running from Louisville into this state, has been trying to buy the Indianapolis, Columbus and Southern road.

That such negotiations have been under way could not be verified at Columbus. The Republican of that city says:

"Inquiry at the offices of the Indianapolis, Columbus and Southern Traction about the truth of the report brought a statement from Hugh Th. Miller, secretary of the road, that he had never heard of any negotiations. 'I have not seen Mr. Irwin for a long time,' he said.

When asked if such negotiations might be pending, Mr. Miller said William G. Irwin, president of the company would be the man to answer such a question. Mr. Irwin is in Egypt today and is visiting the Sphinx. Mr. Miller suggested that an equal amount of information might be secured from either.

It is not regarded as probable, however, that any negotiations are on for the purchase of the local road or even if such negotiations are pending it is not thought likely that the Indianapolis, Columbus & Southern be sold.

Mr. Insul is largely interested in the traction lines running as far north as Scottsburg, where the Indianapolis & Louisville line joins with his properties, the various lines making connecting links in the road between Louisville and Indianapolis. As Mr. Insul is heavily interested in Chicago traction projects he may have a scheme for a through line from Chicago to Louisville. However, no information could be secured here today relative to what his plans might be.

Heart to Heart
Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

TO A HOUSEWIFE.

At the end of your long day you are listless and worn and tired.
 Small wonder.

There are no union hours for you,
 and it is a long stretch from morning meal to the after supper darning. You have scarcely stopped to breathe.

Not once have you relaxed—which is a mistake.

You can learn something from the Hindoo mother. It is the invariable rule of the Hindoo household that the mother, as well as the children, must retire for a half hour daily into silence, relax the muscles, regulate breathing
 and meditate on things eternal.

Possibly you cannot give so much time, but you can give, say, ten minutes.

If you try, you can, if you are so determined,
 take a few minutes, say, after the Sunday meal, lie down, relax your tired muscles and overtaxed nerves.
 Maybe you can doze long enough to be unconscious of your surroundings for a moment or two.

Let the dinner dishes go.

It is not necessary that you should sleep. Lie down anyway. Relax. Rest.
 If you will religiously observe a time when you can relax you will be surprised, after a time, how fresh you will be when you take up your household tasks. And you will not feel lousy and worn at the end of the day.

Relaxation.
 It is the last word of the modern scientists. They tell us—and it is good sense—that a human being should not more go through a long day with overwrought nerves and taut muscles than a violin should be kept strung to its highest tension.

Your vitality is limited.
 Why exhaust it? You will live longer and be worth more to your family if you will relax betimes.

Water an animal relax. A dog drops down, full stretched, nose on paw.
 He may jump up in a minute, but he has relaxed.

There is a human example: Judge Charles F. Holmes, Jr., is eighty-five and a vigorous law. He says he has lived long and actively, because every day for fifty years he has relaxed.
 He lies down always in the middle of the day—not to sleep, but just to let the rest of unconsciousness drop for a moment. Then, he says, "I wake up in a new world."

It is the secret of good health and a sure relief from overtension.

COMMERCIAL AVIATION.

Carrying passengers and freight in airplanes is a definite transportation enterprise is perhaps a long way off, but significant of the faith of men in the possibilities of commercial aviation is the formal incorporation of a company in New Jersey for this purpose, says the Washington Herald.
 The expressed intention of the incorporators set forth in the articles of incorporation is the "building and operation of and the carriage of passengers and freight in aeroplanes." As frequently pointed out, the science and practice of aviation is making remarkable progress. By means of the dirigible, a ship and the hydro-aeroplane experts have begun to see that it will be possible some time to use the air as a means of transit, much as the earth is now employed for that purpose. Bearing upon the question of this end, it is only necessary to consider that the evolution of the motor and steamship has been rapid. It has taken many years to build the trolley car to perfection, and the automobile is at least a century old as a practical machine. Fast as the airman progresses with their inventions,
 we need not expect greater advancement in a less time than has been the case with the running on land and sea.

The property of Illinois is reported to be $2,318,333,241. If that is divided among the people each would get $411.11. Where in ten years would that per capita amount undoubtedly undergo a great change. A few men would have $300,000 of it, a few more $100,
 and many more $50,000, and so on. We get to the point where very many men wouldn't have 15 cents. How can we account for this change? For various reasons. Some are smarter than others, some more diligent, some more energetic. These are the reasons and explain why this $411 per capita has disappeared. While the circumstances, the environment, the vicissitude may account for some of the change, most of the change can be referred to the man himself—his character, his habit, his disposition, his appetite—under the influences of which, if bad, that $411 vanishes and reappears in the hands of the man who has been sober, diligent, frugal

 and wide awake.

Urotropin is the name of the drug which Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research declares to be an antidote for infantile paralysis. The dread disease has carried off thousands of victims, and if Dr. Flexner's cure proves to be all that is claimed for it, that alone will entitle the doctor and the Rockefeller institute to be famous for all time to come.

In Boston lately the autograph of John L. Sullivan brought seventy-five cents and that of President Charles W.
 Elliot half a dollar. Now the Boston papers are attempting to explain on the ground that the value of an autograph is partly dependent upon its rarity.

A noble earl of England has put his small boy in a Boston private school because he wants him brought up among people who have no particular respect for a title. We hope he has made no mistake in picking out the place.

A flock of wild geese raced a fast passenger train in Tennessee and came out winners. They went into such a contest mainly, perhaps, because they were geese, yet they had more reason on their side than the human variety of their kind.

"Tips are not seriously objectionable until they take on the proportions of enforced bribes," says the Washington Star. Perhaps so; but the trouble is they do take on that aspect before they go very far.

Poet in New York offers $100 to any man who can prove that he does not want anything. The queer part of it is that a poet should have $100 concealed about his person.

A school for brides has been opened in Pittsburgh to teach young married women how to cook and make dresses.
 Thus even leap year has its compensations.

A Boston woman was stricken speechless while shopping. Probably she saw an article marked $1 flat instead of 99 cents.

Marriage uncovers a man's middle name even if he has been able to conceal it throughout his previous life.

No orator can set the prairies afire
 at present because they are covered with a foot of snow.

Now oysters are going up. The thermometer seems to be the only thing which is going down.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable.
 Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment.
 Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is

LET US FORGET
 JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY

Let us forget. What matters it that we Once reigned o'er happy
 realms of long ago
 And talked of love, and let our voices low,
 And ruled for some brief sessions
 royally?
 What if we sung, or laughed, or wept maybe?
 It has availed not anything, and so
 Let it go by that we may better know
 How poor a thing is lost to you and me.
 But yesterday I kissed your lips,
 and yet
 Did thrill you not enough to shake
 the dew
 From your drenched lids—and missed, with no regret Your kiss shot back, with sharp
 breaths failing you:
 And so, today, while our worn eyes are wet
 With all this waste of tears, let us forget!

Beginning of the Year.

The Athenians began the year in June, the Macedonians in September, the Romans first in March and afterward in January, the Persians on August 11, the ancient Mexicans on February 23, the Mohammedans in July.
 The Chinese year, which begins early in February, is similar to the Mohammedan in having twelve months of twenty-nine and thirty days alternately;
 but in every nineteen years there are seven years which have thirteen months. What is now called old style, the Julian calendar established by Julius Caesar, prevailed until the sixteenth century, when the Gregorian calendar, now in general use,
 was established by Pope Gregory XIII in 1582. This calendar was adopted by Great Britain and the colonies in 1752.
 The difference between old style and new style is thirteen days, December 7, old style, being December 20, new style. Russia still adheres to old style and Christmas there comes on our December 12.

Gates Gave a Big Tip.

"The biggest tip I ever saw given a waiter in my life was bestowed by the late John W. Gates in Paris," said a man who is accustomed to be generous in that line himself. "This happened about ten or twelve years ago.
 Gates entertained a party of about a dozen of us to dinner at the Ritz hotel, and had the little private dining room on the right as you go toward the restaurant. Before the meal was finished Gates called for Olivier, the head waiter. John never did succeed in getting that man's name right.

 "Olivier," he said, "here's a little something for you," and he handed him a 1,000 franc note ($200). I told Gates he was foolish, and that he was spoiling things for the rest of us, but he guessed he knew what he was doing."

Appropriate.

A couple of Washington men were discussing the reported plan of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson to ask President Taft to transfer Dr. Wiley and his bureau of chemistry to some other department on the ground that they do not properly fall within the scope of crop raising and insect investigating. "Wilson wants to put him in the department of commerce and labor," remarked one. "Perhaps he does belong there." "Not at all," rejoined the other. "Wiley ought to be transferred to the department of the interior." "I don't see how he could fit in there." "You don't? Why, man, Dr. Wiley knows more about the United States' interior and the stuff that is fed to it than any man in the country. He ought to be made secretary."

 Dentist—Oh! yes, sir.
 Mr. Henpeck—Then you won't do.

Typical "Ol' Virginny" Negro Was Talking to Mr. Taft, but Didn't Know It.

One day recently Mr. Taft was on a shopping expedition in Washington.
 At his side walked Maj. Archibald Butt, his military aid. A few paces in the rear were two secret service agents. At Fourteenth and F streets stood an aged negro, typical of the halcyon days of "Ol' Virginny." His hair was gray, and he leaned heavily upon a gnarled, unfinished hickory stick. His head was bent by the weight of years; in his listless eyes was a look of perplexity. Suddenly he beheld the approaching form of the president and shambled forth from the protecting wall of the Ebbitt house.

"Scuse me, sah," he said, touching his battered hat politely, as he barred the president's progress; "but kin yo'
 please be so kind as to 'form me whar
 am de White House?"

The president smiled; Major Butt looked puzzled; and the secret service men sprang forward.

"Well, uncle," said Mr. Taft amiably; "you walk one block to the treasury just ahead of you; go two short blocks to your right, and then one block to your left. But what takes you to the White House?"

"Wha' fo' am Ah gwine to de White House? Lor', Marse, jus' fo' nothin'
 'cept to see the pres'dent."

"Why, uncle," interrupted Major Butt; "you are talking to the president at this minute."

"Go 'long, chile!" sniffed the old man. "Yo' all spees Ah don' know de pres'dent, Ah guess. But ye kaint fool ol' Uncle Ned. Ah's got a pictsher ob de pres'dent, an' he done wear glasses an' a fedora hat. Dis yere gemman am de sec'yary ob war."

CLAMOR FOR MAINE RELICS

Hundreds of Claimants Have Appeared for Articles Found in Wreck
 of the Battleship.

Already about 250 claimants have appeared for the relics from the wreck of the battleship Maine which were brought to Washington navy yard on board the collier Leonidas. Under the terms of the law, distribution of the relics is to be made among municipalities, patriotic societies, survivors of the Maine and the relatives of the victims of the disaster.

The articles comprise a strange and incongruous collection, ranging from a few six-inch guns down to brass buttons and crockery. There are plenty of air ports, rubber mats, bits of woodwork, tools—even a sewing machine and a boat anchor. Some six-inch shells are destined for monumental purposes.

To obtain any of these articles formal application must be made to a specially appointed board at the navy department, and only associations and persons within the purview of the act
 will be recognized as proper applicants.

Quaint Oath.

In the Isle of Man many curious and quaint customs still survive, especially in connection with the machinery of the law. The oath administered to the high court judges is a good illustration. It runs:
 By this book (a Bible) and the contents thereof, and by the wonderful works that God hath miraculously wrought in the heaven/above and the earth beneath in six days and six nights, I do swear, that I will, without respect of favor or friendship, loss or gain, consanguinity or affinity, envy or malice, execute the laws of this isle justly between party and party as indifferently as the herring backbone doth lie in the midst of the fish. So help me God and the contents of this book.

It will be observed that this is not merely an oath, but a declaration of Christian faith, and a reference to what was at one time the great industry of the isle—herring fishing—The Green Bag.

How Sherman Maintains Order.

Vice President Sherman desires to maintain order in the senate, and frequently calls down the body in general terms without singling out any particular man. It often happens that when a dry and prosy speaker has the floor a group of senators will begin telling stories and make a great deal of confusion with their laughter. On one occasion a group was listening to Senator Taylor of Tennessee, and the mirth was rather uproarious. They paid no attention to the gavel of the vice president, nor to the frowns of the speaker.

Finally Sherman sent a note to the group which read, "If that fellow who is making a speech is interfering with one of Bob Taylor's stories, I will call him to order."

Still, Better Avoid It.

Profanity is the expression of the vocal underscore; the thunder rumble of the man at bay; the deep profundity
 of supreme crisis; the falsetto high pitch of ecstasy; the double bass of exhaust
 of the vials of wrath; the involuntary discord of shock and surprise; the discord heart string solo of philosopher sit by the fire; the gore cry of the barefoot encountering sharp-pointed hardware in the halls of night; the medium of malediction against stalled motor cars, umpires without the proper degree of bias for the home team and nocturnal feline symphony concerts, and the manifestation of murder-er's sudden metamorphosis into rhetoric, or mayhem's conversion into mutterings and of assault and battery's subsistence into picturesque adjectives.—Puck.

GOVERNMENT IS NOT OPTIMISTIC

Britons See Dark Clouds Covering the Horizon.

MINERS CONTENT TO SIT TIGHT

Strikers Are Convinced That if They Hold Out the Government Will Be Compelled to Exert Pressure on the Owners That Will Lead to a Granting of the Demands of the Miners, Who Feel Themselves Masters.

London, March 5.—There is every indication that work will not be resumed at the collieries for a week, even if there should be a settlement in the meantime, and the British miners have settled down to enjoy a week's holiday. The executive committee of the miners will not meet again before the evening of March 5, and the negotiations with the government are not likely to be resumed before March 6. "We are not in a hurry," said Mr. Harvey, Laborite member of parliament for Northeast Derbyshire. "We do not mean to conduct this like the railway strike—all rush and hurry and then end in a compromise."

This accurately sums up the universal attitude of the miners. They are convinced that if they sit tight they will obtain the minimum rate schedule they have demanded. They feel themselves masters of the situation. That the government is pessimistic in regard to the outlook is obvious from the tone of a speech made by Winston Churchill, the first lord of the admiralty. "There is at present," said he, "no break in the dark clouds covering the horizon. As the conflict proceeds it must bring far greater injuries to the public than to either disputant. It will bring miseries to the poor which are not yet fairly realized."

The Great Central railway seized coal in transit on its lines, claiming that it was empowered under the law to do so on condition that it paid the consideration the value of the commodity. The latter are indignant over the action of the railway company which has caused considerable anxiety.

THEY MEAN BUSINESS

Preachers of South Bend Engage in Civic House Cleaning.

South Bend, Ind., March 2.—The ministers of this city have shown Mayor Charles L. Goetz they mean business in their campaign against vice conditions by causing the arrest of a long list of saloon keepers. Recently when the ministers appealed to the executive for a cleanup, he told them to get the evidence and he would see that the lawbreakers were prosecuted. Within twenty-four hours detectives had the list of names in the hands of Prosecutor Charles R. Montgomery. The ministers say they hope to stop the prize fight in March.

THROUGH THE AIR

This Canadian Will Try to Beat Overland Gold Prospectors.

Ottawa, Ont., March 2.—J. E. Clarke of Toronto is preparing to make a 500-mile dash by dirigible balloon from Cochrane to Ungava, the vast unexplored no man's land lying north of Quebec, west of Labrador and east of Hudson strait, in search of gold. He hopes to beat a party of eleven men whom Toronto capitalists are providing with money to go into Ungava overland to confirm the stories about gold fields. This party will sail from St. Johns, N. F., May 16, with a year's supply of provisions in a schooner with motor auxiliary. They will go thousands of miles north and west. The stories of gold there have been brought overland to Pocupine and Cobalt.

CLAIRVOYANT IS HEAVILY FINED

Terre Haute Authorities Finally Got Clyde McClure.

WORKED SUBSTITUTION GAME

Requiring His Dupes to Wear About the Neck a Bag Containing Money While He Indulged in Incantations to Increase the Wealth of Credulous Patrons, the "Clairvoyant" Found No Difficulty in Getting the Coin.

Terre Haute, Ind., March 2.—On a charge of swindling several persons with the clairvoyance trick of changing money bags suspended on the victim's neck while he made incantations, Clyde McClure paid a fine in court here of $500.

Mrs. Johns lost $1,000; Mrs. Personette, $300; Mrs. Dokkenwaddel, $150, and Benjamin Parson, $190. McClure was caught in Bridgeport, Conn., but jumped $2,000 cash bail before the officers from Terre Haute arrived there. Later, he was caught in a Pennsylvania town and brought to Terre Haute. At the time another clairvoyant and a woman were in the same town and hastened away, and it is cited as a coincidence that a few days ago a clairvoyant giving the name of Wynn swindled a woman in Vincennes out of $2,000, and that his woman companion came to Terre Haute. It is thought that possibly she brought the money with which McClure paid his $500 fine.

The Talk at Washington. Washington, March 2.—It has developed that Colonel Roosevelt gave assurances to Secretary of the Navy Meyer, secretary of War Stimson and others that he would not be a candidate for the presidential nomination against President Taft. He added that he would not support Mr. Taft or any other candidate. It was in view of these statements that President Taft and others intimately connected with his administration declined, and they had read Mr. Roosevelt's statement to believe that Mr. Roosevelt would enter the race.

MISS EVA BOOTH

American Head of the Salvation Army Will Visit Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, March 2.—Miss Eva Booth of the Salvation Army will speak in Indianapolis Sunday and Monday, March 17 and 18. A state conference of Salvation Army officers will be held from March 15 to March 18. Lieutenant Colonel A. Damon of New York, field secretary for the United States, will attend the conference.

Bombardment Not Necessary. Batavia, Java, March 2.—All the Chinese who were arrested here by the Dutch authorities on account of disturbances during the celebration of the Chinese republic have been released on the promise of their leaders to prevent a recurrence of the disturbances. The Chinese threatened to bombard Batavia.

Took Everything Worth Taking. Mexico City, March 2.—The ungarisoned towns of Pinotepec and Omitlan in the state of Oaxaca were attacked by 700 discontented Indians and looted to the ground. No one was killed and everything worth taking was carried off.

AN INCOME TAX NOW PROPOSED

To Provide Revenue Cut Out By Free Sugar.

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS DECIDES

Quite Unexpectedly House Majority Indorses a Bill Proposing a One Per Cent Tax on All Net Incomes in Excess of $5,000.—Regular Republicans in the Senate Are Now Figuring on the Chances of Such a Bill Passing.

Washington, March 2.—In an emphatic manner the Democrats of the house have thrown into congress the important issue of an income tax. At a caucus of the majority party of the house last night a bill proposing a 1 per cent tax on all net incomes in excess of $5,000 was unanimously indorsed. The bill will be passed within the next two weeks.

The levying of this income tax is the means proposed by the Democrats for meeting the loss of $53,000,000 a year in revenue caused by the placing of sugar on the free list. The bill removing the duty on sugar has been reported by the ways and means committee as indorsed by the Democratic caucus with the members from Louisiana and Colorado, sugar producing states, bitterly protesting.

The Democrats of the house present a novel method of evading the supreme court decision declaring the income tax unconstitutional. While they acknowledge that the tax proposed by them in the present bill is an income tax pure and simple, they describe it as an extension of the corporation tax law, which the supreme court has held to be valid.

They have accordingly embodied their income tax scheme in an amendment to the corporation tax law which was passed by congress on the recommendation of Mr. Taft. This amendment purports to extend the corporation tax law to individuals, firms and co-partnerships having an annual income of more than $5,000. The term "business" as employed in the bill is held to embrace everything about which a person can be employed and all activities which occupy the "time, attention and labor of persons for the purpose of a livelihood or profit." Accordingly the terms of the bill apply to professional men as well as to men of business, and to all employees except those who draw their salaries from state, county or municipal governments. The president of the United States himself will be taxed $700 if the bill passes, and each member of a house will be separated from $25 annually.

The unexpected appearance of the income tax issue in congress caused a big stir and completely overshadowed in importance the radical action taken by the Democrats in placing sugar on the free list. The regular Republicans in the senate, as soon as they heard of the move by the Democrats, began to figure on the chances of the income tax bill being passed by that body. This issue that has unexpectedly been thrown into congress is likely to stir up a greater controversy than any measure that has appeared at this session. The Democrats expect that the proposed tax will raise between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000 annually.

FOR FIRST TIME

Parachute Descent From Aeroplane Was Made by Captain Berry.

St. Louis, March 2.—For the first time in the history of heavier-than-air flying a man leaped from an aeroplane at Jefferson barracks yesterday afternoon and descended to the earth in a parachute.

The man was Captain Albert Berry, son of Captain John Berry, winner of the national balloon race from Indianapolis. The spectacular parachute leap from a height of about 1,500 feet was witnessed by hundreds of soldiers. When the aeronaut landed the soldiers cheered wildly and, surrounding the man, lifted him from the ground and half carried him to the office of Colonel Wood, the commanding officer who congratulated him warmly.

Entered Plea of Guilty.

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 2.—William T. Walker entered a plea of guilty to second degree murder and was sentenced to the state penitentiary at Michigan City for life. Walker choked his wife to death Sept. 10 last.

SATURDAY, MARCH 2, 1912.

It is really becoming a little dangerous to commit a robbery or be guilty of a burglary in Seymour. Three strangers who tried the game here have already been sent to the state prison this term and the prospects of others, who are in the county jail, are considered good for trips. Seymour has seven persons in the county jail awaiting trial in felony cases.

Indications are that Seymour faces a year of prosperity, growth and improvement and the revival and reorganization of the old Commercial Club at this time is opportune. The city has frequently felt the need of such an organization during the past year and the possibilities of such a club doing big things for Seymour were never better than at present.

A good many citizens seem to have forgotten that a city ordinance forbids the depositing of ashes or any kind of refuse or trash in the alleys and provides a fine for the violation of the law. Mountains of ashes in the alleys mean not only law violation but, lack a great deal of adding to the city's beauty.

SATURDAY NIGHT
SERMONSBY
MUEL W. PURVIS, D.D.

GOD IS!

That's "God is spirit"—John iv, 24
and is love.—1 John iv, 8.

Man is a big interrogation point. He questions everything, even God. And he does not. The horse and the dog never ask: "Whence came I?" "Whither am I going?" "Who is God?" "Where is he?" They go mutely on their unquestioning eyes. We peer into the stars, but he is not there. We gaze at the stars. He is not there. The limitations of knowledge bind us. The alphabet of earthly alphabet is hard to read. We talk learnedly about conditions and theories, relations and conditions, conjectural hypotheses, fundamental propositions, philosophical problems and metaphysical speculations, but what do they mean? When we are done we have simply been juggling with words. The brain throbs with weariness, the body sinks in exhaustion, we soon drop into life's last sleep. When we say, Who is God? let me see him, it is the finite calling for the infinite. The temporal measure with the eternal. The shadow groping toward the substance.

God Is Spirit.

Not "a" spirit, not one of many, not one of a class, but by himself. He is spirit! And when you leave out "a" you enlarge your idea of God. "They that worship him must worship him in spirit"—that is, you cannot worship by simply kneeling or singing or beating a drum; not even repeating words of worship. You may play an instrument without being a musician. Seneca was a moralist without being moral. A candle is but a stick of tallow until it is lit. God is spirit. No man can grasp spirit until he uses his spiritual sense. But evidence is everywhere. "How do you know there's a God?" asks scoffers of Arab guide. "How do I know a camel passed my way in the darkness? I see his footprints in the sand." Human soul is marked with divine footprints. See it in history—a reformation, discovery of a continent, revolution, abolition of slavery, a new world on shore of far-off island and picked up strange creatures, free in color, marvelous in formation, and said, A creator has been here. Is not so much a question, is it not knowable? As you have faith, so I know? As a rule, fish have eyes, and see light. Should ocean fish be with blind fish of Mammoth? As to existence of light? As a man can see and hear, but some are deaf, some are blind. Why argue with a man who denies color or sound. You give a quick look of pity. The poor fellow is deaf or blind!

Not Lo Here Nor Lo There.

We seem determined to know God, a spirit, through the senses. We must! We will know! The greatest glory of man must always be his ability to discover the unknown, to comprehend the uncomprehended. To be frozen in ice, wrecked on strange shores, burned in volcanoes, pale in study, suffocate in laboratory is nothing to man if he can find the unknown. We are half frightened, however, if some scientist writes magazine articles saying he has taken geologist's hammer, astronomer's telescope, biologist's microscope, physicist's test tube and has found no God—at least if there is one he could not see him. Sure! And blind man might return from art gallery saying he had gone over a world renowned canvas with his thumb and end, to the best of his knowledge, there was no picture there. Trying to comprehend through the wrong sense! God meets humanity on a plane of human intelligence. If I wanted to reveal myself to colony of ants I would have to do it on plane of ant intelligence (which is considerable). Christ is God revealed on man's plane. No, God cannot reveal himself fully. Self repression is part of key of revelation of higher to lower. I use smoked glass to look at sun. It admits so much of light as my optic nerve can endure. Christ is the transfigured flesh through which we see the tenderness and love of God, for

God Is Love.

Only two definitions of God given, "God is spirit," "God is love." But how shall I explain the love of God in type as I would 2+2=4? I won't attempt to. A woman wouldn't argue her affection for her lover. No writer, no poet, ever gets more than a reflection of her love in his lines. Theology comes nearer than geology or astronomy, for we are more nearly akin to the Almighty than to rocks or stars. His breath is in us. He whispers us secrets like a lover. He hides from learned and reveals to babes. A cobbler at his bench may know more than professor at seminary. Each gets his own concept of God. God approaches him on his own level. To one God is all mind, a great intellect; to another law, grinding, ceaseless law. Read the meaning of ruins by the Nile, crumbling Parthenon in Greece, dust of Nineveh and Babylon, pathetic with prayers of haughty and proud peoples: The great world's altar steps That slope through darkness up to God were covered with prayer dust of mighty nations, groping, clutching blindly at God's skirts, each with its own concept. "But it was a soap bubble, a dream." But bubbles burst, dreams vanish. They do not abide through the ages. To us God is heart, God is love.

OLD-TIME REMEDY
DARKENS THE HAIR

Gives Color, Lustre to Faded and Gray Hair—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

From time immemorial, sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost everyone knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair, for curing dandruff and falling hair, and for making the hair grow.

In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready-to-use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. The Wyeth Chemical Company of New York put up an ideal remedy of this sort, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, and authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

If you have dandruff, or if your hair is turning gray or coming out, don't delay, but get a bottle of this remedy to-day, and see what a few days' treatment will do for you.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special Agents, Andrews Drug Co.

Spend Day in Jail.

Greenfield, Ind., March 2.—Judge Mason has given his decision in the case of Mary B. Schott, Gus Borovilos and Ella Richards, all of Indianapolis, finding them guilty as charged of stealing turkeys. He sentenced each to one day in jail and assessed a fine of $1 and costs.

The most common cause of insomnia is disorders of the stomach. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets correct these disorders and enable you to sleep. For sale by all dealers.

Wolf Hunters Profit.

Rensselaer, Ind., March 2.—The bounty of $10 paid by the county for the scalps of old wolves is spurring the hunters to renewed activity and several of the varmints have been brought to earth.

When you have rheumatism in your foot or instep apply Chamberlain's Liniment and you will get quick relief. It costs—but a quarter. Why suffer? For sale by all dealers.

SOME GENERAL SUGGESTIONS FOR SERVING.

Move as noiselessly and handle dishes as carefully as possible. Serve hot things hot and cold things cold.

A well and neatly-laid table is a big step toward a good meal. Fill the glasses two-thirds full. Do not lift a glass when filling it, but if necessary draw it to the edge of the table, never touching the top of the glass.

Finger bowls are to be filled one-third full; a rose or petals, a leaf or a bit of lemon, in the bowl is an addition.

Water should be put into the glasses the very last thing before the guests are seated.

Never reach in front of a person when serving; serve to the left when the food is a matter of choice by the guest.

Remove all dishes from the right and place all food not chosen at the right.

Relishes, like nuts, olives and pickles, may be left during the entire meal for the guest to help himself.

A dolly should be placed between the plate and the sherbet cup as well as under the finger bowl.

With the salad, crackers or bread and butter are served.

Sugar and cream should always be passed with black coffee, as many prefer it.

One service should be removed at a time, not stacking the dishes; this savors too much of boarding house life.

When changing courses, every thing pertaining to the previous course should be removed.

Two vegetables may be passed at once at the left, allowing the guest to help himself.

The knife and fork should be placed side by side when passing the plate to be replenished or when the course is finished.

The intimate process of mastication should be performed in as noiseless a manner as possible with a closed mouth. This may seem superfluous advice, but existing circumstances warrant a reminder.

SALOON LICENSE FEE
IS CUT JUST IN HALF

Gary Saloon Keepers Plan a Celebration.

Gary, Ind., March 2.—The license repealing the saloon ordinance, which reduces the city license fee of 265 saloon keepers in Gary from $500 to $250 a year has been signed by Mayor Knotts. The action of the mayor in signing the ordinance came as a surprise. Two years ago, at the time Gary was overrun with low class saloons, Mayor Knotts fought strongly for high license, even though saloon men, who had placed him in office, bitterly opposed the increase.

Plans are being made by 250 south side saloon keepers to give a three days' celebration because of the passage of the ordinance, at which time sufficient money will be raised to engage legal talent to defend Mayor Knotts and the city councilmen in trials on charges of bribery in connection with the passage of the Dean heating franchise.

MEXICAN GOSSIP

Has It That Madero Is on the Eve of Resigning Presidency.

Mexico City, March 2.—There has been a hard fight at Agua Dulce, in the state of Vera Cruz, between federals and 200 rebels. It is reported that thirty federals and forty rebels have been killed and many wounded. A regiment of federals attacked and defeated a band of rebels near Orizaba. The rebels sustained heavy losses. Thirty rebels who were captured were immediately executed.

The belief is prevalent that the return of Senor De La Barra means that he will accept the foreign relations portfolio. It is thought that then Madero will resign and that De La Barra, who is the best man of the hour, or some other strong man, will take his place. Madero's resignation is only a question of time, as he is utterly inadequate to handle the situation.

Miners Honor Negro.

Brazil, Ind., March 2.—The votes in the annual election of the block coal district are being counted. Indications are that the district, for the first time in its history, and for the first time in the history of the coal industry in Indiana, will have for its president a colored man. In the lead for this position is Charles Griffin, an educated colored man, and one of the oldest coal miners in the district.

LIVED ON
RAW EGGS

Mr. Richard's Experience With Different Diets. Peaches and Buttermilk for Three Years.

Cecilton, Md.—Mr. George Richards, of this place, during the past 12 years, has probably tried more different diets than the average person would ever use in a lifetime.

What he has to say about his experiments, must therefore be highly interesting to anyone suffering from indigestion or stomach troubles of any kind.

He says: "For more than 12 years, I suffered with stomach troubles, and paid hundreds of dollars for doctor bills and medicines. I was also operated on for piles.

I lived on dried peaches and buttermilk for nearly three years. The only thing that would not give me pain was raw eggs. I was a physical wreck. I could not sleep, and was as near crazy as a man could well be.

I must say that after taking two 25-cent packages of Theford's Black-Draught, it did me more good than all I ever spent for other medicines.

I have been working daily on the farm ever since, and I am as hard as iron." This purely vegetable remedy has been in successful use for more than 70 years. Try it. But be sure that it's "Theford's."

Says Woman Planned Burglary.

New York, March 2.—Mrs. Ida Kershaw, a good-looking young blonde woman, was held for the grand jury in the Gates Avenue Brooklyn court on a charge of burglary. With her was held on the same charge James Stearns, a boy of sixteen, who in a confession to the police accused the woman of having planned the burglary which he admits committing. He also accused her of having fed him morphine for several months past.

CHAPTER XX.

Three days later, Daylight rode to Berkeley in his red car. It was for the last time, for on the morrow the big machine passed into another's possession. It had been a strenuous three days, for his smash had been the biggest the panic had precipitated in California. The papers had been filled with it, and a great cry of indignation had gone up from the very men who later found that Daylight had fully protected their interests. It was these facts, coming slowly to light, that gave rise to the widely repeated charge that Daylight had gone insane. It was the unanimous conviction among business men that no sane man could possibly behave in such fashion. On the other hand, neither his prolonged steady drinking nor his affair with Dede became public, so the only conclusion attainable was that the wild financier from Alaska had gone lunatic. And Daylight had grinned and confirmed the suspicion by refusing to see the reporter. He halted the automobile before Dede's door, and met her with his same rushing tactics, enclosing her in his arms before a word could be uttered.

"I've done it," he announced. "You've seen the newspapers, of course. I'm plumb cleaned out, and I've just called around to find out what day you feel like starting for Glen Ellen. It'll have to be soon, for it's real expensive living in Oakland these days. My board at the hotel is only paid to the end of the week, and I can't afford to stay on after that. And beginning with tomorrow I've got to use the street cars, and they sure eat up the nickels."

He paused, and waited, and looked at her. Indecision and trouble showed on her face. Then the smile he knew so well began to grow on her lips and in her eyes, until she threw back her head and laughed in the old forthright boyish way.

"When are those men coming to pack for me?" she asked.

And again she laughed and simulated a vain attempt to escape his bear-like arms.

"Dear Elam," she whispered, "dear Elam." And of herself, for the first time, she kissed him.

"Now, I've got an idea," Daylight said. "We're running away from cities, and you have no kith nor kin, so it don't seem exactly right that we should start off by getting married in a city. So here's the idea: I'll run up to the ranch and get things in shape around the house and give the caretaker his walking-papers. You follow me in a couple of days, coming on the morning train. I'll have the preacher fixed and waiting. And here's another idea. You bring your riding togs in a suit case. And as soon as the ceremony's over, you can go to the hotel and change. Then out you come, and you find me waiting with a couple of horses, and we'll ride over the landscape so as you can see the prettiest parts of the ranch the first thing. And she's sure pretty, that ranch. And now that it's settled, I'll be waiting for you at the morning train day after tomorrow."

Dede blushed as she spoke. "You are such a hurricane."

"Well, ma'am," he drawled, "I sure hate to burn daylight. And you and I have burned a heap of daylight. We've been scandalously extravagant. We might have been married years ago."

Two days later, Daylight stood waiting outside the little Glen Ellen hotel. The ceremony was over, and he had left Dede to go inside and change into her riding-habit while he brought the horses. He held them now, Bob and Mab, and in the shadow of the watering-trough Wolf lay and looked on. Already two days of ardent California sun and touched with new fires the ancient bronze in Daylight's face. But warmer still was the glow that came into his cheeks and burned in his eyes as he saw Dede coming out the door, riding-whip in hand, clad in the familiar corduroy skirt and leggings of the old Piedmont days. There was warmth and glow in her own face as she answered his gaze and glanced on past him to the horses. Then she saw Mab. But her gaze leaped back to the man.

"Oh, Elam!" she breathed.

Many persons, themselves city-bred, and city reared, have fled to the soil and succeeded in winning great happiness. In such cases they have succeeded only by going through a process of savage disillusionment. But with Dede and Daylight it was different. They had both been born on the soil, and they knew its naked simplicities and rawer ways. They were like two persons, after far wandering, who had merely come home again. There was less of the unexpected in their dealings with nature, while theirs was all the delight of reminiscence. What might appear as a sudden and unreasonably passionate love was to them an old and natural thing. The common sense and naturalness of the thing was to them an old and natural thing.

intried trade. They made fewer mistakes. They already knew, and it was a joy to remember what they had forgotten.

And another thing they learned was that it was easier for one who has gorged at the flesh-pots to content himself with the meagreness of a crust, than for one who has known only the crust. Not that their life was meagre. It was that they found keener delights and deeper satisfactions in little things. Daylight, who had played the game in its biggest and most fantastic aspects, found that here, on the slopes of Sonoma Mountain, it was still the same old game. Man had still work to perform, forces to combat, obstacles to overcome. When he experimented in a small way at raising a few pigeons for market, he found no less zest in calculating in squabs than formerly when he had calculated in millions. Achievement was no less achievement, while the process of it seemed more rational and received the sanction of his reason.

The domestic cat that had gone wild and that preyed on his pigeons, he found, by the comparative standard, to be of no less paramount menace than a Charles Klinkner in the field of finance, trying to raid him for several millions. The hawks and weasels and 'coons were so many Dowsetts, Letsons, and Guggenhamers that struck at him secretly. The sea of wild vegetation that tossed its surf against the boundaries of all his clearings and that sometimes crept in and flooded in a single week was no mean enemy to contend with and subdue. His fat-solled vegetable-garden in the nook of hills that failed of its best was a problem of engrossing importance, and when he had solved it by putting in drizzle, the joy of the achievement was ever with him. He never worked in it and found the soil unpacked and tractable without experiencing the thrill of accomplishment.

There was the matter of the plumbing. He was enabled to purchase the materials through a lucky sale of a number of his hair brides. The work he did himself, though more than once he was forced to call in Dede to hold tight with a pipe-wrench. And in the end, when the bath-tub and the stationary tubs were installed and in working order, he could scarcely tear himself away from the contemplation of what his hands had wrought. The first evening, missing him, Dede sought and found him, lamp in hand, staring with silent glee at the tubs. He rubbed his hand over their smooth wooden lips and laughed aloud, and was as shame-faced as any boy when she caught him thus secretly exulting in his own prowess.

It was this adventure in wood-working and plumbing that brought about the building of the little workshop, where he slowly gathered a collection of loved tools. And he, who in the old days, out of his millions, could purchase immediately whatever he might desire, learned the new joy of the possession that follows upon rigid economy and desire long delayed. He waited three months before daring the extravagance of a Yankee screw-driver, and his glee in the marvelous little mechanism was so keen that Dede conceived forthright a great idea. For six months she saved her egg-money, which was hers by right of allotment, and on his birthday presented him with a turning-lathe of wonderful simplicity and multifarious efficiencies. And their mutual delight in the lathe, which was his, was only equalled by their delight in Mab's first foal, which was Dede's special private property.

Daylight had made no assertion of total abstinence, though he had not taken a drink for months after the day he resolved to let his business go to smash. Soon he proved himself strong enough to dare to take a drink without taking a second. On the other hand, with his coming to live in the country, had passed all desire and need for drink. He felt no yearning for it, and even forgot that it existed. Yet he refused to be afraid of it, and in town, on occasion, when invited by the storekeeper, would reply: "All right, son. If my taking a drink will make you happy, here goes. Whisky for mine."

"Dear Elam," She Whispered, "Dear Elam."

But such a drink begat no desire for a second. It made no impression. He was too profoundly strong to be effected by a thimbleful. As he had prophesied to Dede, Burning Daylight, the city financier, had died a quick death on the ranch, and his younger brother the Daylight from Alaska had taken his place. The threatened inundation of fat had subsided, and all his old-time Indian leanness and strength of muscle and nature. So likewise, did the old slight hollows in his cheeks come back. For him they indicated the pink of physical condition. He became the acknowledged strong man of Sonoma Valley, the heaviest lifter and hardest winded among a husky race of farmer folk.

At first, when in need of ready cash, he had followed Ferguson's example of working at day's labor; but he was not long in gravitating to a form of work that was more stimulating and more satisfying, and that allowed him even more time for Dede.

ranch and the perpetual riding through the hills. Having been challenged by the blacksmith, in a spirit of banter, to attempt the breaking of a certain incorrigible colt, he succeeded so signally as to earn quite a reputation as a horse-breaker. And soon he was able to earn whatever money he desired at this, to him, agreeable work. His life was eminently wholesome and natural. Early to bed, he slept like an infant and was up with the dawn. Always with something to do, and with a thousand little things that enticed but did not clamor, he was himself never overdone. Nevertheless, there were times when both he and Dede were not above confessing tiredness at bedtime after seventy or eighty miles in the saddle. Sometimes, when he had accumulated a little money, and when the season favored, they would mount their horses, with saddle-bags behind, and ride away over the wall of the valley and down into the other valleys.

One day, stopping to mail a letter at the Glen Ellen postoffice, they were hailed by the blacksmith.

"Say, Daylight," he said, "a young fellow named Slosson sends you his regards. He came through in an auto on the way to Santa Rosa. He wanted to know if you didn't live hereabouts, but the crowd with him was in a hurry. So he sent you his regards and said to tell you he'd taken your advice and was still going on breaking his own record."

Daylight had long since told Dede of the incident.

"Slosson?" he meditated. "Slosson? That must be the hammer-thrower. He put my hand down twice, the young scamp." He turned suddenly to Dede. "Say, it's only twelve miles to Santa Rosa, and the horses are fresh."

"Say," He Called Out, "I'd Like to Tackle You Again."

She divined what was in his mind, of which his twinkling eyes and sheepish, boyish grin gave sufficient advertisement, and she smiled and nodded acquiescence.

"We'll cut across by Bennett Valley," he said. "It's nearer that way."

There was little difficulty, once in Santa Rosa, of finding Slosson. He and his party had registered at the Oberlin Hotel, and Daylight encountered the young hammer-thrower himself in the office.

"Look here, son," Daylight announced, as soon as he had introduced Dede. "I've come to go you another flutter at that hand game. Here's a likely place."

Slosson smiled and accepted. The two men faced each other, the elbows of their right arms on the counter, the hands clasped. Slosson's hand quickly forced backward and down.

"You're the first man that ever succeeded in doing it," he said. "Let's try it again."

"Sure," Daylight answered. "And don't forget, son, that you're the first man that put mine down. That's why I lit out after you today."

Again they clasped hands, and again Slosson's hand went down. He was a broad-shouldered, heavy-muscled young giant, at least half a head taller than Daylight, and he frankly expressed his chagrin and asked for a third trial. This time he steered himself to the effort, and for a moment the issue was in doubt. With flushed face and set teeth he met the other's strength till his crackling muscles failed him. The air exploded sharply from his tensed lungs, as he relaxed in surrender, and the hand dropped limply down.

"You're too many for me," he confessed. "I only hope you'll keep out of the hammer-throwing game."

Daylight laughed and shook his head.

"We might compromise, and each stay in his own class. You stick to hammer-throwing, and I'll go on turning down hands."

But Slosson refused to accept defeat.

"Say," he called out, as Daylight and Dede, astride their horses, were preparing to depart. "Say—do you mind if I look you up next year? I'd like to tackle you again."

some. You'll have to train up, for I'm plowing and chopping wood and breaking colts these days."

Now and again, on the way home, Dede could hear her big boy-husband chuckling gaily. As they halted their horses on the top of the divide out of Bennett Valley, in order to watch the sunset, he rained alongside and slipped his arm around her waist. "Little woman," he said, "you're sure responsible for it all. And I leave it to you, if all the money in creation is worth as much as one a.m. like that when it's got a sweet little woman like this to go around."

Daylight's steadfast contention was that his wife should not become cook, waitress, and chambermaid because she did not happen to possess a household of servants. On the other hand, chafing-dish suppers in the big living-room for their camping guests were a common happening, at which times Daylight allotted them their chores and saw that they were performed. For one who stopped only for the night it was different. Likewise it was different with her brother, back from Germany, and again able to sit a horse. On his vacations he became the third in the family, and to him was given the building of the fires, the sweeping, and the washing of the dishes.

WOMEN, AVOID OPERATIONS

Many Unsuccessful — And Worse Suffering Often Follows. Mrs. Rock's Case A Warning.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will show how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when often it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich. — "Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it." — Mrs. ORVILLE ROCK, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has restored the health of thousands of suffering women. Why don't you try it?

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 178 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

A nearly square house design 24 feet wide by 30 feet long, with a cottage roof pitched rather low, is shown in the accompanying perspective and floor plans. This style of house is growing in popularity. In walking along the newer streets of Chicago, as well as in other cities, I notice a great many similar houses. It is a plan that offers a large amount of room in proportion to the material used in building. The nearer square you get a house, the more space you can enclose within the four walls. Every foot of wall costs money, especially during these times when the prices of almost all building materials must be picked from the top shelf.

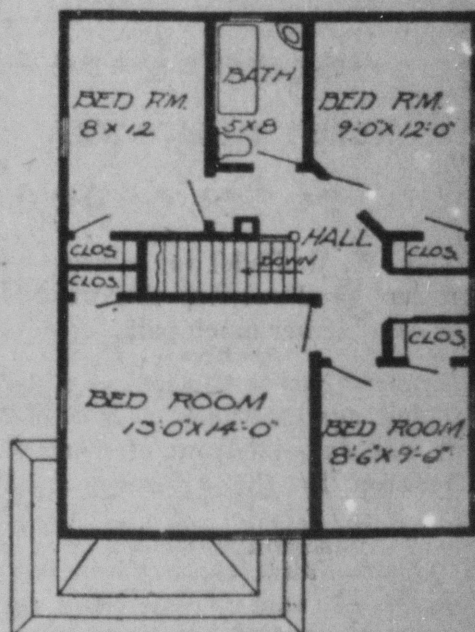

The general design of this house is simple and quite plain, yet its severity is relieved by ornamental effects secured through the wide, projecting eaves, the belt-course at the second-floor line, the location of openings, and the general sense of proper proportions and neatness. As a popular house, it is designed for economy in building; but, at the same time, comfort has not been sacrificed to save a few dollars.

There is great economy, for instance, in making one chimney do for the kitchen range and heating apparatus. There is still further economy in putting the chimney in the middle of the house, and running it out through the roof at the highest point.

stead, a good appearance is secured by studying out good elevations and proportions that go well together.

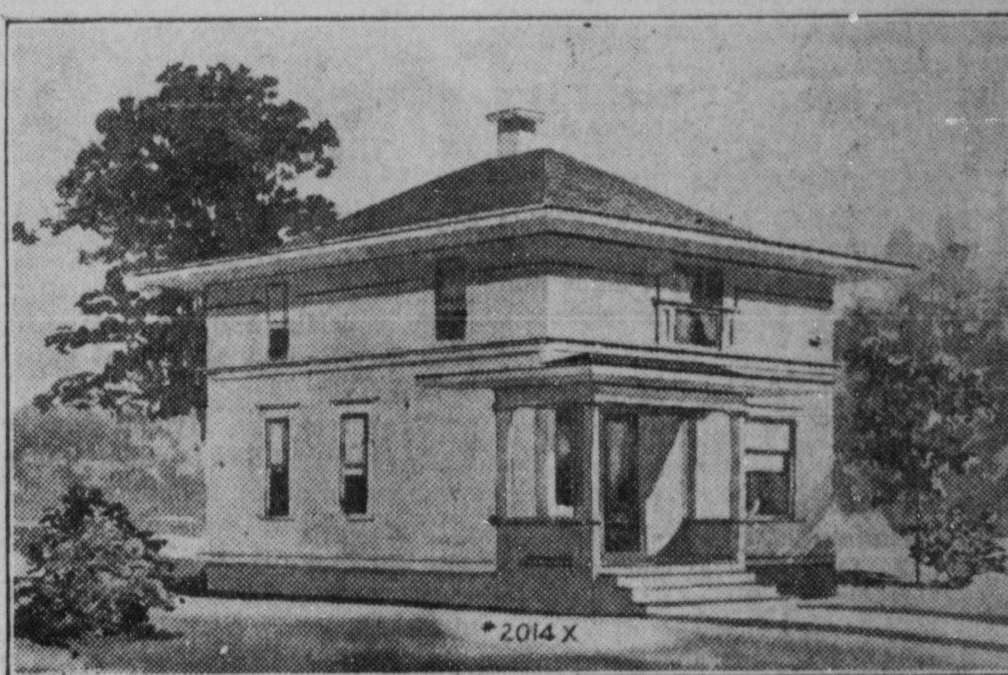

Cottage roofs like this were popular in Colonial days. They are easily made, and look especially well on a house as nearly square as this. Cheap help may be employed on such a roof, because it is all straight work. Any one can cut the roof-boards and put on the shingles, after the boss carpenter lays out the rafters and puts them in place.

This little house contains every convenience necessary for comfort.

Second Floor Plan.

It is just the kind of house that is needed by the great majority living in towns and cities—the great majority whom we might call the "common people"—people who want comfort, who want to live right and enjoy life as they go along. Lincoln once said,

It costs less to shingle around a chimney at the ridge than any other place; the chimney is better supported; and it costs less to prevent water from rains or melting snow coming in around the chimney, when the latter goes through the roof at the peak, because there is no accumulation of water there such as you have to contend with down near the eaves.

You seldom see eight rooms laid out conveniently in a house that is only 24 by 30 feet. You must utilize every foot of space to the best advantage to secure so many rooms and still have them convenient. This is accomplished

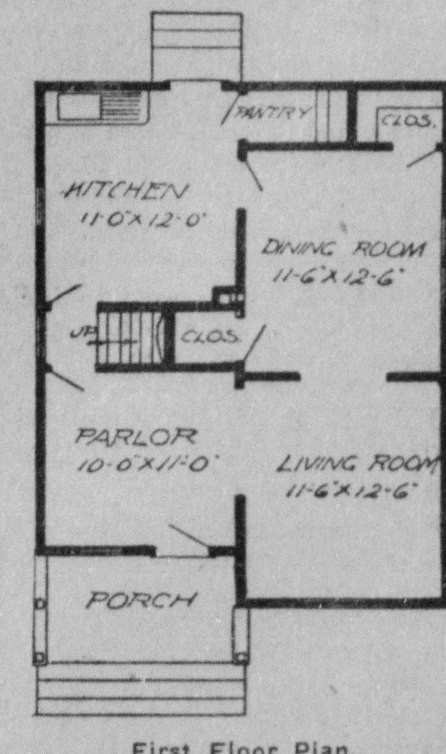

"The Lord must love the common people, because he makes so many of them." Probably Lincoln considered that 90 per cent. of the population would naturally come under the definition "common people." In my opinion the proportion is not very much different today. The common people are the kind to build up a community—the backbone and strength of the nation. We may require an uncommon genius occasionally as a leader; but for every-day dependence, the common people are just as important now as they were in Washington's or Lincoln's time. That is why I am so anxious to see more of these low-cost houses.

When I see a man start in to build a low-cost house for himself, I know right off that that man intends to build a home and have it paid for in a short time, and that he will succeed. More of such houses means more comfort and more contented citizens.

But while it is right and proper to be contented with the house you have, that does not mean that a person should not progress. A person may go from one step to another in house building, the same as in business; but it is difficult to feel happy and contented in a habitation which does not provide conveniences for doing one's work, and which is not comfortable in cold as well as in warm weather.

It is quite an undertaking to build a house. It means, for most persons, years of hard work; but they are the happiest years to look back over. Success depends upon the start made. If a person uses the right kind of plan—one the most of which will be well within his means, and one that will be reasonably satisfactory when the house is finished—the chances of paying for the property and of soon having a home free of encumbrance, are very much better than when a more elaborate design is selected.

The little details that go to make up a satisfactory house must not be overlooked. A house without a bathroom is a back number. No one wants a bedroom without a clothes closet, and it does not pay to try to do without hot and cold water both upstairs and down. When the plumber is at work it costs but a trifle more to have a pipe for hot water laid at the same time the cold water pipe is put in. There are other incidentals, but these are the most important.

F. A. Huntley, state commissioner of horticulture in Washington, says in a report just submitted to Governor Marion E. Hay, that of 238,786 acres of land devoted to fruit growing in the state of Washington, 229,854 is planted to apple, peach, plum, prune, apricot and cherry trees. Estimating the average annual yield at $8,500,000 for the next five years, he places the average value of land devoted to horticulture at $350 an acre, on an earning basis of 10 per cent. which, growers say, is ultra-conservative. The acreage devoted to strawberries is 2,532, with 400 acres in cranberries and 2,500 acres in grapes and 3,500 acres in other berries. More than 10,000,000 of a total of 14,978,182 fruit trees in the state are in 18 counties east of the Cascade mountains, where intensive methods are practised in the commercial orchards. Spokane county heads the list in apple culture with 1,894,882 trees; Yakima county has 1,883,771 and Chelan county claims 1,821,581. Okanogan county is fourth with 847,535 and Stevens county has 324,676 trees.

THE HYLAND HOUSE

Seymour People Have Built New Hotel at Bedford.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hyland have just completed a new hotel building at Bedford. The hotel which is to be known as the Hyland has been finely furnished and is under management of Mrs. Anna Milligan. This evening there will be a public opening and the Bedford public has been invited to inspect the handsome new structure.

The Bedford Mail says of the new hotel:

The Hyland House, a fine new modern building, recently completed at the northeast corner of Eighth and J streets, is a valuable addition to the city of Bedford, and the North End in particular. It is a square two story structure, with a 50-foot stone pillared veranda across the south front, and contains 21 rooms; being designed especially for a first-class private boarding house. The men's waiting and smoking room is 12x25 feet in dimensions, and the dining room 15x25 feet. Both are finished in beautiful panel designs. All the wood finish of the interior of the house is in the finest quarter-sawn oak, the cross-panel oak doors having few equals in this city for beauty of grain and finish. There is a toilet and bath room on each floor. The house is lighted by electricity and heated by a furnace in the basement.

The hand of fellowship will be given to all those who have recently come into the church and have been baptized. It is greatly desired that all such be present at the morning service. It is also desired that all the older members of the church be present to greet the new members.

Let us make this a day of thanksgiving and praise for the rich blessing God has recently given us. The public cordially invited to all these services.

Nazarene.

The first night of the revival campaign was one much enjoyed. The evangelist preached a most excellent sermon. His text was recorded in Matt. 3:11. He spoke of the two baptisms and laid great stress on repentance and what it means. The church was well filled, and if you want to secure a good seat you must come early. The evangelist said he had preached on an average of one sermon a day for twenty-seven years. Requests for prayer came from several in the audience. If we have any Pennsylvania Dutch in the city you should come and see one of your kind. Services three times tomorrow, 10:30 a. m., 2:30 p. m., 7 p. m., Sunday School 9:30 a. m.
